A Co-operative is a voluntary and free association of people joined together to serve their own needs for goods or services. They are people of all walks of life. Together they own stores to serve themselves. They own co-operative wholesale that supplies their store. They often own the means of producing things they require. What they own together, they use together. They know that the responsibilities and benefits of ownership are theirs alone. And as they own, use, share, control and manage together, these co-operatives train themselves in the arts of self-help, responsibility and self-determination. These are the foundation stones of a better society for all.

THE ESSENTIAL PRINCIPLES OF CO-OPERATIVE ORGANIZATIONS

as approved by the International Co-operative Alliance

September 1966

1. OPEN AND VOLUNTARY MEMBERSHIP

Membership of a co-operative society should be voluntary and available without artificial restriction or any social, political or religious discrimination, to all persons who can make use of its services and are willing to accept the responsibilities of membership.

2. DEMOCRATIC CONTROL

Co-operative societies are democratic organizations. Their affairs should be administered by persons elected or appointed in a manner agreed by the members and accountable to them. Members of primary societies should enjoy equal rights of voting (one member, one vote) and participation in decisions affecting their societies. In other than primary societies the administration should be conducted on a democratic basis in a suitable form.

3. LIMITED INTEREST ON SHARES

Share capital should only receive a strictly limited rate of interest, if any.

4. RETURN OF SURPLUS TO MEMBERS

Surplus or savings, if any, arising out of the operations of a society belong to the members of that society and should be distributed in such manner as would avoid one member gaining at the expense of others.
This may be done by decision of the members as follows:
(a) by provision for development of the business of the co-operative.
(b) by provision of common services; or
(c) by distribution among the members in proportion to their transactions with the society.

5. CO-OPERATIVE EDUCATION

All co-operative societies should make provision for the education of their members, officers and employees, and of the general public, in the principles and techniques of co-operation, both economic and democratic.

6. CO-OPERATION AMONG CO-OPERATIVES

All co-operative organizations, in order to best serve the interests of their members and their communities, should actively co-operate in every practical way with other co-operatives at local, national and international levels.

— Formulated by the ICA Commission on Principles and adopted at the 23rd ICA Congress in Vienna, September, 1966.

The co-operative will succeed if the three parts all know what their role and responsibilities are - and if they work together.

- Members own the co-op and elect the board of directors.
- Board of Directors control the co-op and hire the manager.
- The manager operates the co-op for the members.
- The manager is responsible to the board.
- The board is responsible to the members.
- The members support the co-op.

When all three groups co-operate and support one another, the co-op is successful and permits people to live their lives according to their culture and their ways.

MANAGEMENT TRAINING

At the Annual General Meeting of all of the co-ops of the NWT, the delegates unanimously approved the following motion.

"Moved by Amoya Netsek and seconded by Adam Tuttalik that the board of directors of the Federation give first priority to Management Training for northern native people".

31 co-ops have signed an agreement with CACFL and have entered the Management Training Program.

Co-ops are owned by the members - Co-ops are controlled by the board - Co-ops should be managed by the people who own and control them.

Manager Trainees are the future managers of NWT co-ops and are part of the leadership of co-ops. They will be good managers ONLY if they are supported in their work by all members and the board of directors. Without this support and understanding, manager trainees will find it difficult to do their job well. With this program it is hoped that more and more Dene and Inuit co-ops will be managed by northern native people in the coming years.

CO-OPS are PEOPLE

Board Member Education

We all have to learn to walk, to speak, to hunt. In the same way we all have to learn about co-ops. Many people think the co-op is the same as any other store, like the Bay. We have to learn that the co-op belongs to the people. Other stores want to make profits. Co-ops wish to give good service, and make savings for its members. Co-ops are not run by government but by the board of directors.

Co-ops exist for the people. Co-ops believe that northern native people's lives are not controlled by big business or CACFL or government. People control their own lives.

This is what board-member education is all about. Members should use the co-op, elect their board of directors, learn about their co-op, go to meetings.

Board of directors also must learn about co-ops and what their roles and responsibilities are. This is what board-member education is all about. The Canadian Arctic Co-operative Federation Ltd. has A Board-Member Education Program to assist your co-op in educational programs.

THE RAINBOW FLAG

The Rainbow Flag is symbolic of the world-wide Co-operative Movement which today embraces more than 900,000 co-operative societies serving more than 500-million members in 70 countries.

Its seven colors include the colors of the flags of all nations, and remind us of the good and great achievements that people can bring about through Co-operation.

It was in 1896, at the Second Congress of the International Co-operative Alliance, that a delegate, F. Bernardot, proposed a flag of seven colors for the Co-operative Movement; a flag that would be "a sign for alliance for humanity and of social renovation for us."

The Rainbow Flag, officially adopted by the ICA executive in 1923, was first flown publicly at the International Co-operative Exhibition and ICA Congress at Ghent, Belgium, in 1924.

This flag is seen flying over most co-ops in the Northwest Territories.
